Acknowledgements

I would like to thank my wife Fay for the many years of support in my Scouting career. She has endured much time spent alone at home, while I spent time with the young men at numerous camps, Wood Badge (twice), National Youth Leadership Training and two National Jamborees.

Thank you to all the Scouters across the Council and Region that have that have provided many hours of camaraderie and experience. I would especially like to thank my mentors and friends Ken and Eloise Leggate, Leo and Kay Ermanthout, and Clyde Frank for all their advice and guidance throughout the years that made scouting fun and educational.

To Debra Nelson, another good friend, who helped in this presentation and made this presentation possible.

To Dee Dee Revelette for her help with the composing of this report.

I would also like to thank my son, Justin, whose courage under extreme circumstance is a role model for me as to what it means to be a Scout.

Finally, I would like to thank all the Scouts and Scouters who over the years have assisted me and contributed to my growth.

Preface

Throughout my years of scouting, I have seen many good young men leave scouting early and when asked why they left, these former scouts could not, or would not, give a good reason for leaving.

"We have been talking about also given us lots of information about our youth market. We found out which radio stations Scouts listen to (hard rock and classic rock lead the way [remember the year-end]). We learned that what most influences them to buy a product was a friend who had the product. ...These young men are knowledgeable consumers and are selective in the products they buy ..."<sup>1</sup>

My observation based on 11 years of experience as a Scoutmaster and talking to other Scoutmasters, led me to formulate the following opinions:

- Present day scouts have so many other opportunities to be involved, and scouting is no longer the only game in town.
- We, as adult leaders, are not delivering a quality program to compete with these other opportunities.
- In order for a scout to stay in scouting, he needs to have the backing of his parents.

All information for this document was obtained by the survey.

In the 1960's song "Where Have All the Flowers Gone", there is a line "Where have all the young men gone? Long time passing. Where have all the young men gone, long time ago..."<sup>4</sup>

Even though the song was a Vietnam protest song, the question could be applied to today's situation with scouts leaving the program.

Scouts now seem to be busier than any generation in American history, as they have many opportunities at school, after school programs, church activities, etc... There were several individual surveys that said the reason that the scout did not recharter was because the scout was too busy; these scouts were Tiger Scouts. If a Tiger Scout is too busy for scouting what chance do we have as they get older?

In small Class B schools, because of the small student numbers, if the young man is not involved in the school activity, the activity does not happen. In the larger Class A schools, the students have many different activities to be involved in. In addition, all these young men have their school work to occupy their free time.

Beside school activities, young people can be involved in 4-H, FFA, church and work. They also have friends, i-pods, video games, cell phones, etc. Scouting must compete with these other "distractions".

Several years ago Mr. Mark Holtz, Northern Lights Council Executive, stated that there were three "B's" for why a scout leaves scouting; 1) Bad Program 2) Bad Leaders 3) Busy.

So what is a unit to do if the unit is providing a quality program that is boy-run with monthly outings and trained adult leaders, and the scouts are still leaving? But why? The answers to these questions are what this research hopes to discover.

The Research

In the 2008 rechartering process for each scout that did not recharter, the leader was asked to give a reason why. The reasons were:

1. Changed Programs (moved from Cub Scouts to Boy Scouts or Boy Scouts to Venturing)
2. Too old for the program (e.g. over 18 for Boy Scouts or over 21 for Venturing)
3. Changed units within the same city/town
4. Moved to another city/town
5. Stopped coming to meeting/lost interest/busy with other activities
6. Some other reason not listed above

The survey data was collected from December 2007 – February 1, 2008. The sample size was 2,145, or approximately 13.5%, of the total scouts enrolled in the Northern Lights Council. All 10 districts reported.<sup>5</sup>

Analyzing the Results

In analyzing the results, there were many different ways to look at the numbers. I could have completed the review based on district numbers. This would not be fair in that the larger districts, number-wise (i.e. Northern Sky), would have the highest percentages. I could have looked at the numbers on a council-wide basis, but that was too large a subject matter. The last review could be by category. I chose to base the review on the numbers and the personal experiences of myself and other scout leaders.

Of the 2,145 non-rechartered scouts, 1,187 or 55.34% stopped coming to the meeting, lost interest or were busy with other activities. This was the number one reason for a scout not rechartering. The next real reason, other than some other reason not listed above, was moving to another city or town (218 or 10.16%).

As a scout leader, we cannot do anything about scouts moving to another town, and it is the author's opinion the category "Other" is a lazy way for a leader to not find out why the scout left. That leaves "Stopped coming to the meeting/lost interest/busy with other activities." This category, by far, is the number one reason for a scout not rechartering. It is 5 ½ times greater than the next true reason for not rechartering "Moved to another city/town".

The following are some of the reasons I have heard for a scout not coming to meetings.

1. Forgot
2. Working-need the money
3. Did not know what time the meeting started
4. Friends are no longer in the troop
5. Did not get elected to a patrol position
6. Parents forgot
7. Religious reasons
8. After school activities (Sports, Music, etc.)
9. Not what expected
10. Busy
11. Did not have or could not find uniform

Let's categorize these reasons and see if there is any common thread.

In looking at the 11 reasons, I am going to sub-categorize the reasons into 1) The Mind 2) Fume Disease 3) Pride and Prejudice 4) Not Meeting the Promise 5) A Scout is Reverent and 6) School.

The Mind

I have made an observation that it takes approximately six meetings for the meeting time to become a part of the scout's routine and four meetings for a scout to stop coming to the unit meetings. In my troop, we give each scout a copy of the approved yearly calendar and a monthly calendar. If the scout does not attend the meeting, the Senior Patrol Leader calls the scout and reminds the scout that the troop is having a meeting that night.

In the pack, each scout gets a reminder, in writing, from the cub master and from the den leaders a few days before the den and pack meeting and the day of the meetings; it is announced in school announcements.

Fume Disease

There are some scouts, who because of family situations, must work as soon as they are old enough to do so, but these scouts are very few.

In the state of North Dakota, a young man can obtain his driver's license when he turns 14 years old. That is about the same time that the dreaded "Fume Disease" starts. For those readers that do not know what this disease is, it is perfume and car fumes. It is that time in a young man's life that he discovers that girls do not have cooties and that a motor vehicle is the most important item in his life.

It takes money to feed this disease and, therefore, the scout starts looking for an after school and weekend job. Jobs have a tendency to cut into the time that is available for scouting, especially for weekend campouts and other scouting weekend activities. The lure of money is a very powerful reason for not coming to scout activities.

Pride & Prejudice

In our society today, there are no losers, only winners. So when a boy thinks he should be the leader of the troop, even if he is a first year scout, and is not elected to any of the leadership positions he quits, because he did not feel like a winner.

A Scout is Reverent

In some religions, the scout is not allowed to do anything but observe their religion during certain times of the week. This is OK; as one of the three points in the scout law is duty to God. Scouting should never come between the scout and his religion.

School

It now seems that school is now in every aspect of the scout's life. In the small Class B schools, for an activity to take place, most of the students in the school must participate or the activity does not happen. This is especially true in sports. In the school districts in southwest North Dakota, sports are number one. Under North Dakota High School Activity Association rules, sport activities cannot be held during Wednesday and Sunday nights. So what the coaches do is to have "open gym" on these days. The Coaches have been known to come right out and tell the student athlete that "if they do not show up for the open gyms, they will not play in the next game." In my troop's case, we hold our troop meetings on Sunday nights, so some of the scouts cannot come to the scout meetings because the "open gym" lasts until 6:30 pm and our troop meeting is 6:00 - 7:30 pm.

Also, most games and matches are held on Friday nights and Saturdays during the day. This cuts into the amount time that is available for the scout to be involved in any weekend scout activities.

I have come to the conclusion that the type of young man we will get into scouting will be the one that is not involved in many school activities.

Not Meeting the Promise

In the document "Are you Delivering the Promise?" the promise is providing monthly outings, boy led troop, trained adults and a positive image of scouting.<sup>6</sup>

If the number one reason that scouts do not recharter is because they stop coming to the meetings, it must be concluded that we as leaders are not delivering the promise.

Monthly outings

In smaller troops and packs it is not always possible to provide a monthly camping experience because those units do not have the adults to do it. But even in the smallest of units it is possible to take one of the unit meetings and make it an outing, maybe to a museum or to a basketball game. It is important to use all of the activities that are offered by the district and the council in order to meet this part of the promise.

Boy Led Troop

What level of involvement are the boys in? Are they part of troop elections, junior leader training opportunities? What is the frequency of patrol leaders' council meetings?

Trained Adults

In the highly active troops it is not unusual that for every two scouts, there is one adult working with the troop committee or serving as an assistant Scoutmaster. It is important that these adults have at least the fundamental training so that they understand how a troop functions.

Positive Image of Scouting

What is the current image of scouting in your area? If the scout's peers feel that being in scouts is for "geeks" or nerds", the chance that a scout who is easily swayed by his peers would stay in the troop is lessened.

The number one thread that runs through all of this is the parents. Are the parents making the decision that it is easier to plop the kid in front of the TV/computer or shuttle him to soccer practice than to invest the personal time required to take him to a scout meeting or outing?

Parents are caving in to a changing world, giving in to messages of good parenting sent out by the society in which they live.

If society values the values of scouting (duty to country, God and self) more than the other activities, then they must make the choice that scouting is the correct way to go. All parents want this for their sons.

This means that when a scouting weekend comes up, Josh will have to miss football practice. It means that when there is a scout meeting, Jimmy may not be at the wrestling mat. It means that the vacation to Vegas may have to be cancelled, so that the troop has two-deep leadership on their week trip to summer camp, because there isn't the vacation time to do both. Taking these steps could be challenging. It isn't easy to go against the trend. Parents may have to band together. If one parent goes to the wrestling coach, they may be turned down. But if four or five parents show up, the coach may be more accommodating.

The BSA has a program called Scout Parents, with the goal of getting more parents involved in scouting with their sons. This program is new and may work. First however, we need to get the parents inside the door instead of dropping off Johnny at the door and picking him up after the meeting is over. If the parents are not tuned into the goals and purposes of scouting and only see it as another activity for their sons, the boys will only come to a few meetings and quit coming, no matter how much they want to come to scouts.

One other thing that this survey reveals is that retaining members needs to be raised to a position of importance, equal to that of recruiting them. In the past, we offered a program and hope that the boy would find something that would keep him around.

As I stated before, we have no control over a boy leaving because his family left town or he decides to switch to sports. The best strategy is to have a great program. Beyond that we need to have several other ideas that may work. Here are some ideas that I and other scout leaders have used.

- Make sure that there are plenty of opportunities to earn, and receive advancements. It is very important that if the scout earns a merit badge that he be presented with it soon as possible. This also goes for rank advancements. If you want a formal recognition at a scheduled court of honor to make the announcement, do it. But make sure that the scout receives the rank badge as he has earned it. Hold frequent Courts of Honor.
- Make sure that the scout has a chance to grow, that he has leadership and high-adventure opportunities to look forward to.
- Start with the assumption that every scout's goal is to make it to Eagle Scout, but along the way make sure the scout understands that becoming an Eagle Scout is not graduating out of scouting.
- Develop special awards within the troop that encourage the scout to participate in activities that are outside of the normal troop activities, i.e. Hot Tamale Award for camping out in 100 degree + weather, or Zero Hero Award for each time that he goes winter camping in sub-zero temperatures.

- Hold regular Scoutmaster Conferences, even if they are informal. Not all conferences need to be in a formal setting. It is alright just to talk to your scouts. Sometimes the best way to find out what a scout is thinking is by just talking and letting the scout talk.
- Address attendance problems early. If a boy has three unexcused misses, that is three meetings without an excuse, in a row, give him a personal call to find out what is going on.
- Conduct an exit interview. Find out why he left. This may help prevent further losses. You may convince him not to leave, or if it is something that cannot be corrected, to find another troop.
- In towns that do not have a scout troop, make contact with the WEBELOS and invite them to come to your troop.
- Have fellow scouts talk with the scout that is leaving to try to convince him to stay.
- For those scouts that have school activities at the beginning of a weekend activity, the parents make arrangements to have the scout make the activity for the rest of the weekend activity. For example, a scout has a football game on Friday night, the scout's troop has campout scheduled for the same weekend, Friday-Sunday, and the parents make arrangements for the scout to get to the campout on Saturday morning by letting him drive to the activity, if he is of legal age, or take him to the activity themselves.

CONCLUSION

In the beginning of this thesis I was looking at three reasons why scouts did not recharter. They were:

1. Many other opportunities to be involved other than scouting.
2. Adult leaders not delivering a quality program.
3. Lack of parental support.

Based on the statistics, the number one reason that scouts did not recharter in 2007 was "Stopped coming to meeting/lost interest/busy with other activities."

In today's world, a boy has lots of different options for his spare time and life. In the past few years, the Boy Scouts of America has done a great deal to get the word out about scouting to these young men, especially in Cub Scouts. The amount of advertising and promoting has increased for Boy Scouts. BSA needs to continue to increase the amount of advertising and provide training to adults on how to attract boys to the values of scouting.

The main reason that scouts quit coming to scouting is the lack of parental support. It does not matter if the boy wants to come to scouting above anything else he is doing, if the parents are not supportive of the decision, the scout will not come or will quit coming altogether. BSA needs to do an extensive advertising campaign through television, newspaper, magazine, radio and all other means of electronics to tell the scout side of the story. I do not know of many parents that would not want the value that scouting has for their sons. The local units can only do so much and they have a very limited market, i.e., the unit's home town. In order to reach a much bigger audience, the National BSA will need to come into the 21st Century with the way that it gets the word out about scouting.

A business person knows that if they are going to get more customers, they need to advertise more and in different media, and this is what the National BSA must do.

In order to get the attention of today's parents, BSA must put scouting in their face. Today's parent use i-pods, i-phone, email, instant messenger, facebook, you-tube and other electronic means to get their news and entertainment. BSA already uses this media to get the message out to the Scouters in the field and to parents that know the value of scouting.

BSA must use this same media to get the message and value of the boy scouts out to this new generation of parents that does not know anything about boy scouts except what they hear from the major news medias; then and only then will BSA see a decline in the number of boys not rechartering.

It also means spending money on television spots on national networks, both satellite and cable. The use of radio needs to be terrestrial and satellite. This means that national BSA will need to massively increase the dollars spent on advertising. The large advertising done in the August 4, 2008 Newsweek was a start but more of this type of advertising needs to be done.
